A MODERN CLASSIC

Marrying a classic look with modern functionality and finishes can be a challenge. This kitchen rises to the task with timeless style that meets all the needs of a contemporary family. The island bench is visually appealing, with the square columns cementing the room's traditional feel. Open shelving at one end provides extra storage space, and underbench seating is provided for four to make this area great for meal prep or dining. The rangehood is a striking centrepiece, with the subway-tile splashback cabinetry being stylish without stealing the limelight. Either side of this cooking area is bookended by tall pantry-like cabinets acting as a secret entry to the laundry and the butler's pantry. It's the attention to detail that really makes this room sing. The upright gas oven again captures that traditional feel of the room, and the taps are elegant, in keeping with the home's style, while still meeting modern demands.
